Nuclear Loophole?

Legally Free To Produce A-Weapons

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain acknowledged Monday that West Germany is legally free to produce nuclear weapons outside its own territory but Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd expressed the conviction in the House of Commons that West Germany would not do so.

Lloyd met a barrage of questions from Labor members about Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's plans to establish military supply bases in Spain. Similar questions met foreign under-secretary Lord Lansdowne in the House of Lords.

Lansdowne was questioned closely about pledges given by West Germany's Bonn government in 1954 when it joined NATO and was granted sovereignty. He affirmed the London and Paris treaties prohibited West Germany from manufacturing atomic, biological or chemical weapons on its own soil.

Lansdowne admitted that West Germany could produce such weapons in Spain or other foreign countries but this would be "entirely contrary" to the spirit of the 1954 treaties.

In the Commons, Lloyd said the West German government has plainly stated it does not intend to produce nuclear weapons on German soil or anywhere else.

"I believe that statement of their policy," he said.

Labor MP John Edwards, a Spanish civil war veteran who was expelled from Spain last December, said a stockpile of West German guided missiles has been produced at a factory outside Bilbao, Spain.

Steel Starts Soon

Premier W. A. C. Bennett indicated yesterday that a start on the Wenner-Gren railway in the Peace River district will be made within the next 31 days.

Asked by Gordon Dowding (CCF, Burnaby) whether or not the railway will be started in the second quarter of the year, and whether or not it will be a monorail, Mr. Bennett replied:

"You'll see no word in the letter of intent about a monorail. But there is a definite commitment to build a railroad." He then added that the letter of intent stipulated that a start be made by April 1.

Later Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) asked the same question, and wanted to know if a plan had been filed. Mr. Bennett would only repeat that there was a definite commitment.

Mr. Harding also inquired whether, if the railroad were not started on time, the rest of the agreement with Wenner-Gren interests would be washed out. He received no answer.

PREMIER BENNETT

ROBERT STRACHAN

Bennett Back In Fighting Form

A marathon debate on government policy which rose from Premier Bennett's salary vote last Friday to approach filibuster proportions under CCF stimulus ground to a halt at 11 p.m. last night—but not without a final spate of name-calling.

And not without a new rehash of the public power policies and ultimate firing in 1958 of H. Lee Briggs, former general manager of the B.C. Power Commission.

Premier Bennett, still recuperating from a kidney operation one month ago, was back in his old fighting form last night for the first time since he resumed part-time duties 10 days ago, and impressed observers with his staying powers through afternoon and evening sessions.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan leapt into the dying hours of the debate yesterday with the charge that the government's stand on the Shrum royal commission report on power, which he said, "justified Mr. Briggs."

Time After Time

CCF after CCF rose

ment, the CCF is the enemy of time and time again to try to get the premier pinned down on the plans to develop the Columbia River and the Peace River, but the premier ably parried each demand.

The premier did reiterate that the government is prepared to sanction proposals of the Peace River Power Development Company provided the B.C. water controller and the Public Utilities Commission substantiate economic and engineering feasibility.

At one point in the heated debate on the premier's estimates which include the power question, Premier Bennett claimed the Social Credit government is "the friend of the power commission and not by intent, but by foolish judgment."

He said that if millions of dollars were spent to take over the B.C.E., it wouldn't create one new job, but it would tie up the credit of this province and make development of the Columbia impossible.

He said that if millions of dollars were spent to take over the B.C.E., it wouldn't create one new job, but it would tie up the credit of this province and make development of the Columbia impossible.

Mr. Harding said some 40,000 acres of good agricultural land would be flooded if a High Arrow dam is built. A lot of first-rate agriculture land will be lost forever to British Columbia," he said.

Mr. Harding was unable to get a definite answer from the premier as to why the government had not included the Peace River project as one of the projects to be dealt with by the newly-formed B.C. Energy Board.

Great Defenders

"We are the great defenders of the power commission. We build on a sound basis, not on the shifting sands of socialism," he said.

Premier Bennett was aggressive and took the attitude that he had the CCF on the run. "Today nobody knows where the CCF stands. They just want a few labor bosses to get their money," the premier said.

But the CCF were just as aggressive and just as confident they had the government on the run.

Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) charged the government had plans for Columbia development which it re-

Into Both Projects

The premier replied that the energy board will be brought into both the Columbia and Peace projects when it comes to recommending on integration of power developed by both projects.

"Are you afraid the energy board would advise it is not an economic project at this time?" Mr. Harding asked the premier.

"At one point in the debate Mr. Harding referred to the Socreds as 'Tories with crew cuts.'

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black (SC, Nelson-Creston) entered the debate as the member from the "centre of the Columbia system."

"I am for the best for Canada, the best for B.C. and the best for the Kootenays," he said.

"I have word from the minister (Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston) the matter will be discussed with the people of the Kootenays," Mr. Black said.

"When the time comes for the whole thing to be discussed at the community level, it will be discussed. At the moment I do not have an opinion," Mr. Black said.

Britain Before Election

Premier Bennett said last night he will go to Britain before the next provincial election.

Asked by Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) when he was going to Britain, the premier said around April or May.

At a recent press conference the premier said he would be going in May or early June.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

I got the surprise of my life reading the new autobiography of Norman Rockwell (Doubleday).

Norman Rockwell is an American institution. He's done more than 300 Saturday Evening Post covers (the first in 1916, when he was 22); he's done advertising for Coca-Cola and American Tel and Tel; he's done Boy Scout calendars; he has illustrated Mark Twain.

You'd think such a man would have led a serene, placid life, the exact opposite of the tortured artists' lives of Van Gogh, Utrillo, or Jackson Pollock.

Well, it isn't so. Norman Rockwell's life has been a succession of inner struggles, turmoil, inferiority complexes, and psychological crises.

He was born and brought up in a staid, middle-class family; three of his grandparents were utterly respectable. But he took after his maternal grandfather, a frustrated artist who worked as a house painter to feed his 12 children.

As a boy he suffered from a fierce inferiority complex. He describes himself as a skinny kid, pale, with glasses, a protruding Adam's apple, narrow shoulders, jelly arms, and thin-measly-looking legs. "All I had was the ability to draw," he writes. "So I drew and drew and drew."

Nervous Breakdowns

He went to art school and soon was successful as an illustrator. But his inner struggle went on. He records that he came near a nervous breakdown at the age of 20, and again at 36, and again at 59. (There are hints of many similar interludes in between.)

He had an unhappy first marriage, which broke up after 14 years. He has been restless all his life, taking innumerable trips, and moving his home with disastrous results.

Modern Art Decadent

There is a surprising passage in the book where he expresses sympathy with Soviet "socialist realism" as against our own abstract expressionism, which is now in the saddle.

"Our modern art is to a great extent decadent," he writes. "Does an artist live on an island all by himself? Is his only obligation to express his own insides? Or does he have an obligation to help?"

Winnipeg March Next for Women

OTTAWA (CP) — Elliot Lake's 135 crusading women, led by a 90-minute meeting with "that wonderful man" — Prime Minister Diefenbaker — decided Monday to march on Winnipeg in hopes of keeping their struggling Ontario uranium centre alive.

Aim of the Winnipeg campaign will be to persuade Manitobans to turn over a planned nuclear research centre.

Shirleen O'Brien, chairman of the emergency committee, said the Ottawa trek convinced the women Mr. Diefenbaker "is really behind us" in trying to find a solution.

The women, trying to keep their town from going bust through a U.S. decision not to purchase Canadian uranium after 1962, met Mr. Diefenbaker, Trade Minister Churchill and Labor Minister Starr.

They were disappointed after meeting Mr. Starr and Mr. Churchill, who were "less enthusiastic." The prime minister will say next Monday if he will take a trip to Elliot Lake — the women's main request.

The second — transfer of the Manitoba research site to Elliot Lake — was discussed with the other ministers.

Key Finch Witness Confused, Mistaken'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Defence attorney Grant Cooper said Monday he believed the key witness in the Finch-Tregoff murder trial was trying to tell the truth but was confused and mistaken.

Cooper began final arguments for Dr. Bernard Finch by telling the jury he had to find Finch guilty beyond reasonable doubt.

Cooper told the jury he thought Marie Anne was doing her very best to tell what happened, but she misunderstood what happened.

Cooper attacked the "overwhelming presumption of guilt" against Finch and Carole Tregoff before their case came to trial.

"I don't believe in trial by newspaper," he said, "or on television or over the radio. The press has been fair, but their information came from only one source — the police and the prosecution."

Cooper attempted to recall Miss Lidholm and a newspaper reporter to the stand to show a conflict in her story, but Judge Walje Evans rejected the motion.

Hypnotism Success Before 600 Doctors

MONTREAL (CP) — A young woman doctor was put into a hypnotic trance by an American psychiatrist yesterday to show some 600 family doctors how they can use hypnosis in their work.

Dr. Milton H. Erickson of Phoenix, Ariz., past president of the American Society of Clinical Hypnosis, gave a lecture on hypnosis in general practice for the family doctors at their annual convention here.

Dr. Erickson said hypnosis in the proper hands can be a useful and important tool for doctors. He said it has been used to help patients bear heavy body casts, by dentists to remove pains and tension and by psychologists.

Cooper attempted to recall Miss Lidholm and a newspaper reporter to the stand to show a conflict in her story, but Judge Walje Evans rejected the motion.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev said yesterday he would carry out his plans to end the Western occupation in West Berlin if forthcoming summit talks fail.

Khrushchev thus appeared to be setting another deadline for changing the status of West Berlin, despite his agreement with President Eisenhower last year not to do so.

SEPARATE PACT

Khrushchev said yesterday Russia would sign a separate agreement with East Germany, ending the Western occupation, if the summit talks did not resolve the issue.

He said he believed in the good intentions of the men he would face at the summit and expressed hope the talks would reach "a good outcome."

UP TO GERMANS

But he discounted a reported Western plan for an all-German plebiscite under UN supervision, saying such a plebiscite is up to the Germans to work out themselves.

This implied negotiations between West and East Germany, whose regime the West does not recognize.

FREE CITY

Khrushchev still viewed West Berlin as a free city, which would mean Allied troops would have to leave.

Khrushchev signed with President Sukarno a $25,000,000, low-interest loan, in return for which Indonesia pledged to remain neutral.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S., Britain and France intend to resume high-altitude plane flights into West Berlin soon even though Soviet fighters made threatening passes at such flights a year ago.

The decision, certain to anger Russia, comes 2½ months before the May 16 summit meeting to discuss the Berlin problem.

In another move adding to pre-summit tensions, Russia has been trying to force the West into a de-facto recognition of East Germany by changing the wording on passes granted to the West's military liaison group at Soviet high command headquarters in Potsdam.

Officials here said Russia was being notified through diplomatic channels of the Big Three's decision to resume flights in the air corridor between West Germany and West Berlin at altitudes above 10,000 feet.

Last March, when several U.S. planes flew above that level, Soviet fighters buzzed them and Russia hinted it would use force to stop the flights.

The flights were halted when Britain objected that they were needlessly making the Berlin crisis more tense.

But Britain now is understood to have agreed to resumption of the flights.

Russia maintains flights above the 10,000-foot level amount to trespassing on East Germany's air space and its fighter planes have a right to force them down.

The West contends there is no altitude limit in its agreement with Russia and argues sufficient notification of each new jet plane's operation more such flight so that it will have time to file objections.

The officials said the West is offering to give Russia suf-just prior to the flight.

Counting

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI) — It's not how you speak but how you count, a local magistrate ruled yesterday.

Magistrate Arthur Hanrahan was sentencing Achille Bravo to a $6,220 fine for tax evasion.

Bravo was convicted of falsifying his returns for seven years and not paying $12,000 in taxes.

When the defence counsel pointed out his client's poor command of English, Hanrahan replied the important factor was whether he could count or not.

With a complex contracting business, he said, counsel's description of an "unlettered laborer" was unacceptable.

Ratepayers Say 'No'

DEFEAT for the second time in less than three months of the Saanich school district building bylaw raises the interesting question of what happens next. The margin by which the bylaw failed to carry was only 71 votes in another disgracefully small poll, but that does not alter the fact of defeat. All over the school district lazy parents who wanted the bylaw to pass must be kicking themselves for thinking that others would carry it for them. But they have had two chances already and cannot expect a third.

The result of voting on Saturday is not attributable this time to lack of understanding of the district's needs in school accommodation, or of the consequences if the ratepayers failed to approve expenditure of the $810,000 required. The second campaign for passage of the bylaw was well organized by its supporters, and the district was thoroughly canvassed with literature explaining the situation. Yet the ratepayers again said "no."

For the provincial government there is in this development a very clear message of property-owners' dissatisfaction with the British Columbia system of financing schools. The defeat in December may have been caused by resistance on the part of ratepayers who have no direct interest in expansion of school facilities; but after the intensive campaign of information conducted prior to the second poll it is obvious that those who voted "no" on Saturday must have included some parents of school-age children as well—parents who as ratepayers are against any further addition to their local taxes.

One cannot believe that a majority of those who voted are not in favor of the children having adequate classrooms; so the only remaining conclusion to be drawn from the facts is that the ratepayers chose this telling method of recording their protest against the method of financing.

The next move appears to be up to the government. Added to all the other expressions of dissatisfaction and concern, headed by the strong submission of the Union of B.C. Municipalities in favor of a new provincial formula, this demonstration in Saanich strengthens the case for an examination by an independent commission. If other school districts in B.C. adopted the same attitude towards capital projects the government ultimately would have to reconsider the basis of the present cost-sharing structure. It would be in a much stronger position, and might also avert serious difficulties, if it took that step now.

Well Down the List

TWO gold medals, a silver and a bronze one represent Canada's share of the spoils at the Squaw Valley winter Olympics, concluded last Sunday. Except for the medal winners themselves, whose performances were of championship calibre, this country's showing was of minor quality. As in previous summer Olympics, this country lagged behind.

Theoretically an Olympiad is an individual affair, with each event spotlighting persons and not nations. In practice the opposite is the case; national prestige is very much to the fore. The final points total may be unofficial but it is real nevertheless, and individual heartburning is salved by team victories.

Russia ran away with the championships, leading the field with 165½ points and winning 21 medals in all. Canada came eighth in the standings, with 32 points. The biggest blow to this country's pride of course was that it should be beaten at its national game, ice hockey, by the United States. It does not lessen the sting that Canada's team by no stretch of imagination was typical of the best the country can produce. European peoples will not study the niceties of "amateur" and professional distinction.

Even allowing for the larger populations elsewhere—set at naught by Australia in summer games—Canada should be able to do much better in modern Olympiads. In winter games especially this country would be expected to shine. Skating is a birth-right, and snowy slopes abound here as they do in Russia, Finland, the Scandinavian and other European centres.

Less official encouragement is given to Canadian athletes, however, and it is time some steps were taken to correct this situation. In the world of today it is important to keep the sports flag flying; the Canadian potential must equal that of any other, but it needs facilities and support to bring it out. It must surprise many foreigners that a northern nation so familiar with ice and snow cannot do better than place eighth in winter Olympiads.

Withstood the Test

A SIDELIGHT on the fire which destroyed the empty mill buildings of the Crowe, Gonnason Lumber Company, Ltd., on Saturday was the unexpectedly sharp test which the intense heat induced at the nearby tank-farm of the British Columbia Electric Company. A sprinkler system at the tanks went into operation immediately and did an effective job. Technically, it is explained, volatile gases kept under high pressure in liquid form in full tanks are not in themselves a hazard; and that it is only in gaseous form the mixture might become explosive. In any event the BCE installation came through its first serious test without incident.

It is standard practice today to store propane or butane, and sometimes a mixture of both, in pressure tanks in liquid form. There have been reported though isolated instances where a tank in transit by rail or road has through one cause or another gone up, but these are regarded as very rare exceptions and due to abnormal causes. At the same time no community can overlook the potentially destructive concentration of combustibles inside the city limits. A well-handled fire and effective tank-sprinkling system gave Victoria a clean bill of health on this occasion. Everyone will be thankful for that. Had it been otherwise the large crowd which congregated to watch the burning lumber yard might have had a sharp and sudden lesson.

There is no doubt that this experience will attract the attention of fire-prevention authorities and civic firewatches and result in a normal review of the situation here to see that the safeguards are adequate in all circumstances. The use of highly volatile liquid gases is still comparatively new, and every precaution which can be devised must be taken into account. For its own comfort, Victoria came through well from the waterfront conflagration.

Struck Jarring Note

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE violent emotions aroused in Britain and Germany over the proposal to establish German bases in Spain emphasize a basic lack of understanding between the two countries.

In Britain, where memories of the events leading to the Second World War are still strong, the idea of German forces using Spain as a training ground conjures up the unpleasant picture of bombers with swastika markings levelling Spanish towns in the Civil War, which proved to be a dress rehearsal for the Battle of Britain.

Paradoxically, it is West German anxiety to forget the past and concentrate on the future that appears to have created in the country's leaders a blind spot towards the sensitivity of their European neighbors.

The anger of Chancellor Adenauer over the outburst of anti-Semitic incidents last Christmas points up Germany's vulnerability whenever it is confronted by the same sort of situation. His spontaneous solution was to urge right-thinking citizens to beat up offenders on the spot.

The suggested remedy of greater efforts to teach the evils of Nazism in the schools fails to take into account the reluctance of the young to listen to prolonged lectures about failings of their own country, for which they refuse to be held responsible.

Adenauer, too, points with indignation to his own irreproachable anti-Nazi record as a guarantee of the purity of his motives, and reacts with growing indignation to the attacks of a British press which many Germans believe to be inspired by the government.

Greater tact at government level and a general easing of international tensions are likely to smooth over the present rift. But it is probable that the passage of time is also required before British-German relations reach the peace that passes misundertstanding.

ONEONE in the Legislature the other day pinned the Socreds to the hue of green, presumably because of the official color of the centennial decorations two years ago.

There are shades of more desire.

One of the chief delights throughout the ages has been to associate himself with color, and never more so than today when 1,000 charts of varied hue bedevil householders about to paint a room. These self and his doings with color, and never more so than today when 1,000 charts of varied hue bedevil householders about to paint a room. These will be in this mess.

THE honorable member for East Whistler got off his honorable seat and indulges in a 30-minute natter to the effect that the farmers, whose income is likely to skid this year, never had it so good under the Grits.

The equally hon. member for Kick-Cow-Centre gets off his hon. seat for a retaliatory 30-minute complaint that if the Tories had hewed to the good Liberal farm policies laid down by Jimmy Gardiner, the country wouldn't be in this mess.

Time taken: one hour. Value thereof: nil. Cost thereof: 1,800 of your tax dollars.

The Liberal leader Lester Pearson makes a speech saying that if the trade minister had gotten off his hon. seat last year and squawked loudly enough in Washington right up to Ike, the Americans might have been bullied into buying more of our uranium after '62 in spite of their own domestic over-supply. Therefore the Tories are to blame for losing this $300,000,000-a-year export business. And the Tories will be to blame if Elliot Lake and Uranium City end up as ghost towns.

The hon. minister, Gordon Churchill, points out hotly that if the government of which his hon. friend had been a member had had the foresight of a blind bat in 1957, it would have tied up the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission with delivery contracts lasting much longer than the five-year contracts the AEC has now declined to renew.

This makes the hon. Lester Pearson squirm. If you thought so, why didn't you say so in 1957? He counters in a half-kettle-black retort. Then he needles the prime minister about visiting Elliot Lake, knowing full well that the PM won't stick his head into that angry town unless he has something to offer, and believing that the PM and the government have nothing to offer except advice to the unemployed miners to move away and find work in other mines.

How come all the high-pressure party politics in Parliament when we're at least a year and four months from an election, and perhaps two and a half years?

Well, there was a figure in U.S. politics a few years ago known as "Give-em-hell Harry." Last name Truman. He wasn't conceded much chance in 1948 against Tom Dewey, but his give-em-hell tactics worked. He spent the next four years in the White House.

I don't know that Pearson is consciously patterning himself in the image of Truman, but there is no doubt that he has deliberately adopted a give-em-hell policy in the hope that he'll spend the four years after the next election in the executive mansion at 24 Sussex St.

The new "Fighting Mike" is the change from Pearson-the-Statesman that many Grits have been praying for. They wanted a fighting leader, and their dissatisfaction with his striped-pants leadership got back to Pearson. He made a cold-blooded decision to become just that, after careful assessment of the political advantages and disadvantages.

"Some people like it and some don't," a Grit politician told me. "But we figure that those who really prefer the old Mike will vote for him anyway, and on balance we'll be ahead."

Of course, the Tories are not taking this new Pearson lying down.

As there are four times as many of them in the House as there are Grits, it makes for frequent wrangles that spice the sittings but do little to speed the serious work of the Commons.

Art Is Imperfection

By GREGORY CLARK

In the upstairs back of a jumbled second-hand store a friend of mine found a walnut bedroom suite that caught his fancy.

Though it was dusky and somewhat shabby, he took a business associate who is a furniture manufacturer to have a look at it.

"Buy it," said the expert. "If you don't, I will. There is just enough wrong with it to make it a work of art."

This strikes me as a very interesting definition. Do products that achieve perfection fall as works of art? It could be. Here we are surrounded with what is intended to be perfection in our motor car design, in our latest buildings, in our clothes, in everything we consume or employ in our wonderful century. We are tireless in our struggle for perfection.

We change our style of car, or architecture, of household appliances every year.

But we are curiously

blindly wed

By man and beast and earth

And air and sea.

Burns bright or dim, as each are mirrored off

The fire for which all thirst,

now beams on me.

Consuming the last clouds of cold

drawn, despite it all, to some old piece of furniture, some old building standing apart and alone, or even some modern production that has that little strange something wrong with it that makes it a work of art.

In the Vatican museum in Rome I saw some of the masterpieces of Benvenuto Cellini. They were indescribably beautiful. But in every one of them, to my eye, there was just some little thing wrong.

The convenient excuse of "communism" has been advanced to explain the world-wide agitation. But this is hardly the explanation in Uruguay, where the Communists have only a slight influence. It cannot be blamed for the feeling which runs so high in the Scandinavian countries, and l'Observatoire Romano, official paper of the Vatican, can scarcely be said to be under Communist influence.

Under California law Brown cannot commute Chessman's sentence unless the Supreme Court approves, and the court has held out 3 to 4 against

Chessman. Polls of the legislature show Brown's move to repeal the death sentence likely to lose. So as the 60 days tick off the whole horrendous drama will be played over again.

In a political year, this gets into politics and into the election of a new legislature with far-reaching national significance. So much turns on the tangled web of one man's destiny.

Politics on The Scaffold

By MARQUIS CHILDS

AS though he did not have enough worries, Secretary of State Herter shortly before he took off with President Eisenhower for Latin America expressed to associates his deep concern over the Gary Chessman case.

The world-wide attention it has received is an amazing phenomenon, with direct consequences on America's position in other nations and even on American foreign policy. What Herter particularly fears is that as the 60-day reprieve granted Chessman on the eve of his execution—for the eighth time—nears an end the clamor will increase to an even louder pitch. The official Vatican newspaper is saying that surely now it will be impossible to put Chessman to death after keeping him dangling for 12 years.

The State Department is, of course, directly involved because of the telegram sent to Governor Edmund G. Brown by assistant secretary of state for Latin America Roy R. Rubottom Jr. Governor Brown gave the telegram priority in his decision to stay the execution and, as a result, senators have lambasted the assistant secretary for interfering in a matter of California justice.

But an inquiry into the dramatic circumstances surrounding Rubottom's message reveals that he really had no choice but to pass on the word he received from Montevideo, capital of Uruguay. No master of fictional suspense and mystery could have rivaled the chain of circumstances leading to death in the gas chamber at San Quentin.

The execution was set for 10 a.m. on Friday. On Thursday evening at 9 o'clock the American embassy in Montevideo reached Rubottom on the phone. He was told that the nine-man council which is the governing body of the country had passed a resolution bringing to the White House the threat of anticipated hostile demonstrations when President Eisenhower visited that country on March 2 if Chessman were executed.

Letters to the Editor

Leave Thetis Alone

We have enough developed park and recreation areas for the present generation. Why not let Thetis Lake Park remain as it is for 60 or 70 years and let our grand-children develop it as they see their own needs?

The scars which we make, such as roads, burrow pits, spoil pits, tourist camps, motel sites, concessions, garbage dumps, etc., cannot be called improvements; they are merely alterations and in no way improve the natural beauty provided by nature.

Future generations may not need roads but simply small landing areas for their helicopters. Anyone who visited Happy Land in 1958 and tried to use the conveniences supplied there will know what I mean by disgraceful improvements. Please leave Thetis Lake Park "as is" and let those future generations who need more recreational areas develop it according to their needs.

Back to Stone Age

I see no need for controversy with Mr. Luff. He says "Socialism is possible directly a majority show a desire for it." Precisely, and what is socialism? Webster's dictionary defines it this way: "A political and economic theory of social organization, based on collective or governmental ownership, and democratic management of the essential means for production and distribution of goods."

Engels himself said the key to the solution lay in the above. I think these quotations cover the matter; although of course we must have an informed electorate to put it into effect. However, if war is an inevitable result in this present economic setup we must be ready as any survivors would go back to the Stone Age!

Sentence Today In Cheque Case

Pleading guilty in city police court yesterday to uttering a forged cheque, a 22-year-old man was remanded to today for sentence.

Robert Hutton, who formerly lived in a room above Sands Mortuary Ltd., 1803 Quadra, admitted cashing a cheque purportedly signed by Laverne M. Sands and made out in the amount of $87.

This was done, said Det. William Andrews, Feb. 19 at the Hollywood Grocery, 1712 Lillian. With the proceeds, accused paid an account of about $20, and received slightly more than $65 in cash.

A few days later Hutton gave himself up to Calgary police and was brought back to Victoria.

Stephen Cassidy, HMCS New Glasgow, pleaded guilty to theft of $25 from the Launderette, 843 Yates, and was remanded to March 4 for probation report and sentence.

'Reds Sincere In Desire For Peace'

LONDON (Reuters)—British philosopher Bertrand Russell contends that Russia sincerely wants disarmament and the West does not.

He says man's only hope for survival is for governments to "stop playing the game of prestige, and disarm."

"At the moment I believe Russia is sincere in her desire for disarmament, but the West is not sincere," he said.

His views were published in a London newspaper.

WINDSOR England (CP)—and its imposing mansion are for sale. Leap-year rolled by quickly for Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones, both deep in answering congratulatory letters and telegrams on their engagement.

Thousands of messages which poured into Royal Lodge, Windsor, gave the couple an excuse to extend their spring-like weekend and return to London today.

Their first scheduled public appearance together will be tonight at a gain benefit performance of the Royal Ballet at Covent Garden. Police are making emergency preparations for the anticipated crush.

Before settling down to correspondence, they took a stroll in the lodge grounds and to the neighboring estate of Buckhurst Park which—according to speculation—might become their home. The estate circles is that Margaret will become a June bride at Westminster Abbey. Invitations have come from many countries, including Canada.

Doctor MPs Attack Socialized Medicine

OTTAWA (CP) — A Manitoba physician raised the prospect Monday of dwindling numbers of doctors and lowered medical standards under a program of national medical, dental and optical insurance.

Dr. George Fairfield (PC, Portage-Neepawa) said in the Commons a decline in medical standards has followed establishment of socialized medicine in Britain.

The Canadian medical profession already was worried about the fact fewer men and women are entering the profession of medicine. If the downward trend continued, it wouldn't be possible to maintain the present ratio of one doctor for every 2,000 population.

Dr. Fairfield spoke in opposition to a motion by Arnold Peters (CCF, Timiskaming) calling on the government to establish a medical, dental and optical insurance program and also to include tubercular and mental treatment patients under the current hospital insurance plan.

Mr. Peters argued that "Canada can afford the best type of health care for all. If the downward trend continues, it wouldn't be possible to maintain the present ratio of one doctor for every 2,000 population."

Dr. Fairfield disagreed with Mr. Peters' contention that persons of greater means obtain better medical care. No doctor turns down charity work, said the physician, adding that recent cases have available the finest treatment and care at public clinics.

ETHICS RUINED

Doctors emigrating to Canada from Britain had told him they were "stifled" by the British socialized medical plan, which also tended to ruin their ethics.

With the downward trend in entries to the profession, there would be too few doctors in five years.

BETTER OFF

Dr. R. P. Vivian (PC, Durban), said Canadian doctors don't fear a state-operated health plan because it would lower their income. Many would be "infinitely better off" under such a national system.

But they would oppose the move because it would mean a loss in independence, and an undesirable amount of bureaucracy.

Dr. Hugh Horner (PC, Jasper-Edson) said he favors a free health insurance plan but doesn't think the country is ready for one yet. Among other things to be guarded against were lowering of standards of medical practice and loss of incentives to doctors.

Dr. Horner said "all this talk about statism" may have had much to do with the decreasing registrations at Canadian medical schools.

MAIN CONCERN

Former Health Minister Paul Martin, speaking in support of the motion, said the primary concern should be "that no individual is denied the best possible medical, dental and optical care possible regardless of financial circumstances."

Dr. Joseph Slogan (PC, Springfield), a dentist, said he believes the insurance principle will not work in dentistry because dental treatment of one kind or another is given almost everyone during his lifetime.

One aspect of socialized dental plans in Britain was that there were more extractions and lower standards.

"We want every single stage to be examined and weighed very carefully," he said. "If you sell me on your plan, I will go back and tell my people," he volunteered.

Opposition Leader Strachan charged the government with trying to avoid the power issue in B.C. "They are trying, perhaps unknowingly, to fool the people," he said.

Premier Bennett said the government doesn't have a plan for development of the Columbia because it is still negotiating with the United States. "I am not going to have the federal government accuse me of torpedoing their negotiations," he said.

Earlier as the rehash of the Briggs case mounted, the premier denied that the Shram report justified the actions of the former BCPC chieftain, who, he charged, "exploded because he had built up an organization and wanted to put the extra costs on the people of the province."

The report justified him until November, then he went haywire," Mr. Bennett shouted. "In all these power charges Briggs was found to be wrong and the government was found to be right." But the CCF were so gullible — anyone who worked for public power had to be right. They used pressure to try and get us to raise the rates and I said no, I don't call that dictatorship, I call it leadership."

AMENDED STATEMENT

When Mr. Strachan demanded a retraction of "an absolute falsehood," Mr. Bennett amended his statement to say that the charge was "in the opinion of the premier."

"Never have I heard such nonsense," Mr. Strachan shouted over the uproar. "Listen to the catcalls, Mr. chairman, I ask that you keep those errand boys in order."

He said that the government was "tied to the label of the BCE and Wenner-Gren," and is determined to push the issue down the throats of the people no matter what the cost.

NUB OF ISSUE

"The minute we get to the nub of the issue — the determination of the government to represent the BCE on the floor of the House . . . they make their cataclysm. Let them."

Mines Minister Kenneth Kierman was next to defend the firing of Briggs, over "his desire to maintain an empire that led to an attempt at a 12 per cent increase of power rates."

Then Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) had his say at government policy.

He said the trouble actually started when Mr. Bennett insisted on a change in the interest on money the government had lent the B.C. Power Commission.

STAND UP

"Mr. Briggs had the courage to stand up and say he would not stand for it," Mr. Harding said.

"You were the one, Mr. Premier, in your mad desire to liquidate the provincial debt, who caused it."

The debate finally came to an end with the comment from Opposition leader Robert Strachan that "As far as I am concerned the premier can have his salary, but I am disappointed that he has failed to answer the questions of power development that the people of this province want answered."

OTHER MATTERS

The House then moved on to the other matters under estimates of the premier's office: $42,241 salary vote — including the PGE Railway and toll bridges and highway authorities.

The House adjourned at 11:55 last night after passing the $32,490,774 vote of the finance department.

The premier, who returned to the House from convalescence to pilot his departmental estimates through two days of hot debate, finished up appearing in fine shape.

SEVERAL DAYS

He will not return to the House for several days to pilot through some scattered estimates including legislative salaries which come under his jurisdiction.

Today at 2 p.m. debate will start on the estimates of the agriculture department followed by the attorney-general's department.

Sharon the Class Of Island Tourney

Sharon Whitaker, one-time Victorian who defected to Vancouver, Sunday emerged as the big winner in the annual Vancouver Island badminton championships while Donna Connolly of Seattle, who reached three finals, had to be content with one champion-ship.

Miss Whitaker was an easy winner in the ladies' singles final, scoring an 11-2, 11-4 win over Mrs. Connolly. In the ladies' doubles, Miss Whitaker paired with Maureen Bray of Victoria to beat Mrs. Connolly and Gladys Mallory of Seattle, 17-14, 15-10.

Wayne McDonnell of Vancouver, Washington and Oregon State champion, won the men's singles by defeating defending-champion Nick Johnson of Seattle in the final, 15-1.

Johnson, who had Jack Barrett as partner last year, held his doubles title, however. He partnered Victoria's George Lane to score a 17-15, 18-15 win over the Victoria partnership of Bob Hunt and Ed Hedley.

Mrs. Connolly's win came in the mixed doubles, where she paired with Vancouver star VANCOUVER (CP) — Alain Giletti of France became the number one threat to Donald Jackson of Oshawa, Ont., Monday for the men's world figure skating championship.

Jackson and Giletti emerged as the top two in the world championships which open today when Czechoslovakian Karol Divin was withdrawn.

Davin, silver medalist in the Winter Olympic Games at Squaw Valley, suffered a hip injury several weeks ago and has been unable to skate since the Olympics.

Amid those arriving Monday afternoon were Jackson and Canada's Olympic pairs champions, Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul of Toronto.

CHAMPION ARRIVES

Also aboard the first flight were the defending world dance champions, Doreen Denny and J. L. Courtney Jones of Britain. World and Olympic champion Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, New York, came aboard a later flight.

Sjoukje Dijkstra, pert 18-year-old European champion from the Netherlands, was among early arrivals.

She said, however, it isn't likely to be the site of her first world triumph.

"I don't think so," she replied when asked if she thinks she might upset, defending-champion Miss Heiss, 20.

Miss Heiss defeated Miss Dijkstra in the Winter Olympic Games figure skating competition at Squaw Valley last week and as with the Wagner-Giletti of France became the number one threat to Donald Jackson of Oshawa, Ont., Monday for the men's world figure skating championship.

Miss Dijkstra and Joan Haanappel, also of the Netherlands, arrived here early Sunday, the first Olympic competitors to put in an appearance.

RAMBLER WINS COMPACT CAR ECONOMY TEST!

Rambler American tops nearest competitor
by 6.67 miles per gallon in Pure Oil
Economy Trials at Daytona

Once again Rambler proves it's America's Economy King! Under official NASCAR supervision, the Rambler American won over all other U.S. economy cars to sweep the Compact Car Class in the Pure Oil Economy Trials held at the Daytona International Speedway Public Proving Grounds, February 1-3.

But gasoline mileage is only one measure of Rambler economy. Rambler owners save, too, on lowest prices, lowest upkeep, and highest resale value.

Discover Rambler's all-around economy yourself. See your Rambler dealer today.

HERE ARE THE OFFICIAL PURE OIL ECONOMY TRIAL RESULTS

RAMBLER AMERICAN 51.281 Miles Per Gallon

FALCON 44.614 MPG — Rambler gave 14.9% more mileage

VALIANT 41.801 MPG — Rambler gave 22.7% more mileage

CORVAIR 39.882 MPG — Rambler gave 28.6% more mileage

LARK 32.965 MPG — Rambler gave 55.6% more mileage

IMPORTANT

All cars in the Pure Oil Economy Trials were driven by expert drivers and operated under ideal conditions. The winning Rambler American Custom was equipped with optional overdrive which is not available on most other cars in the Compact Car Class and averaged better than 25 miles per hour. No car owner should expect to approach in every day driving the mileage achieved in this test by Rambler or any of the other cars. However, the results prove again the superior economy that Rambler owners enjoy.

Political Budget Cutters May Lead Us Into Peril

MIAMI Beach (AP)—Former president Harry Truman says it is a lot better to have a strong national defence than a balanced budget.

"Beware of political budget cutters," Truman told a meeting. "Beware of people who belittle the dangers to the security of the free world, and use the smokes of the Russians to justify slashing our defences. They may be leading us into deadly peril."

Head-On Saanich Crash Injures Three Slightly

Three persons were slightly injured Sunday at 7 p.m. in a two-car collision at Trans-Canada Highway and Douglas Street, Saanich police reported yesterday.

James Adams, 338 Obed, received leg cuts, Reginald J. Adams, arm and leg abrasions, and Elizabeth Peterson, 27, Cadillac, leg cuts.

Adams and Jury were drivers of the two cars involved; Miss Peterson was a passenger in the Jury car.

Judge Overrules Jury

VANCOUVER (CP)—A B.C. Supreme Court judge overruled a jury's verdict on a damage suit Monday because they "rejected my instructions and elected to enact a new law of their own."

Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan said the members of the jury "got off the rails" when they topped that in the United States.

Ha. Oliver, 64, of Vancouver, suffered a broken neck in the of-way rule and "was solely to blame for the accident."

He said the defendant, Mrs. Eugene Grove of Langley, B.C., plainly violated the right-way rule and "was solely to blame for the accident."

He said the verdict against

Mrs. Oliver was "unreasonable, and perverse."

Yakking About Begonias

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Seems to me that every time I pick up a paper or a magazine these days, somebody has a big advertisement in it offering begonia bulbs. And every time I turn on the radio, the announcer is yakking away about fantastic bargains in the tubers of these exotic plants.

Either some super-salesman from Belgium or Holland has unloaded a whole shipload of bulbs on B.C. dealers, or the tuberous begonia has caught on here and has won the popularity it so richly deserves.

Certainly, no other flower can hold a candle to the begonia for planting up that problem bed around the north side of the house, where so little sun penetrates.

Most of our annual bedding plants reach for the light in such a position, growing skinny and lanky in the process, or produce all leaves and no flowers. The begonia, though, settles down comfortably, quite satisfied with the bit of sun it gets in early morning and late afternoon, and proceeds to cover itself with a constant succession of tropical-looking blooms which look as if they should be growing in the rain forests of Brazil.

You'll notice, when you go to buy your bulbs, that several different kinds are offered, and I thought it might serve a useful purpose if I were to explain the characteristics of these different types.

CAMELLIA TYPE—If you have ever seen a camellia or a gardenia flower, you'll have a pretty good idea as to the general shape and appearance of these begonia blooms. The plants are sturdy, standing a little better than a foot tall when fully grown, and producing fully double flowers of great beauty, averaging around four inches across. They come in various shades of scarlet, crimson, yellow, white, orange, salmon, pink and copper.

CRISETA TYPE—This word means "crested," and comes from a most attractive tuft or cockscomb on each petal of the bloom. The flowers are single, but about as frilly as grandmother's petticoat, and on some of the named varieties the tuft or crest is a different color to the rest of the flower, creating quite a dramatic effect.

PENDULUM TYPE—These plants have a pendulous or trailing habit of growth, rather like that of the old balcony petunias, so seldom seen nowadays, and are used in much the same way in hanging baskets, urns, and window boxes, arranged so as to trail over the edge and hang down. The pendula begonia is a "must" for window boxes on the north side of the house where sun-loving annuals seldom thrive.

FIMBRIPATIA TYPE—This group produces double flowers heavily fringed and ruffled, and for this reason are sometimes called the carnation-lowered begonias. Prices for these frilly beauties usually run quite a bit higher than for the ordinary kinds.

MULTIFLORA TYPE—These flowers are quite a bit smaller than the run-of-the-mill begonia tubers, yet are just as expensive or even slightly higher priced than the big ones. You may have some doubts as to whether you are getting your money's worth when you buy these little Multiflora bulbs. Set your mind at rest. The Multifloras produce more blooms per bulb than any other kind, and while the plants are dwarf and compact and the individual flowers quite small, they bloom so profusely that you can hardly see the plants for the flowers. Multifloras can take more sun than the larger-flowered types, and are ideal for massing in small or narrow beds, or for window boxes on the south or west side of the house.

The Viewing World

What's with Sinatra?

What's with Frank Sinatra? Sinatra, the hottest thing in show business, has not made a record since last Aug. 1 when he recorded a single record called "Talk to Me." He has not made an album since July 20 when he recorded "No One Cares"—despite the fact that his albums sell more than those of any other entertainer.

The word from pretty-high up in Sinatra's clan is that the singer wants to break his contract with Capitol and concentrate his efforts in his own company, Essex Productions. However, Capitol has Sinatra tied hand and foot for "a couple of years," according to David Cavanaugh of Capital.

As the situation stands, Sinatra can't make records for anyone but Capitol and he won't make them for Capitol. This deadlock could go on for years.

"Four for Tonight" on NBC the other night had a bright sparkle to it, the like of which hasn't been seen on television since the old Sid Caesar show. This is the show that brought together Beatrice Lillie, Cyril Ritchard, Tony Randall and Tammy Grimes. Well, brought together is not quite the word since each of the four performed—except for one brief wacky madrigal and a parody on "Moon and Sixpence" as a single.

I especially liked the opening, a "Mad Revue" with Tony Randall. This had some hilarious blackout sketches. The opening of a J. Arthur Rank picture—a guy swinging a big hammer and crashing right through the gong. Gads, when was the last time I saw blackouts? These were explosively funny.

Beatrice Lillie did two of her old standbys. It's been years since I saw her do that bit as a world-weary actress besieged by admirers. "What's the matter?" "Nothing! Everything!" Cyril Ritchard contributed a parody of "Around the World in 80 Days," that was intermittently very funny—again with that sort of explosive humor that is so rare nowadays.

Tammy Grimes sang a garland of songs intended to show the emergence of the American woman since 1700—everything from "I Don't Want to Play in Your Yard If You Can't Be Good to Me" to "I've Never Been in Love Before." It was delicious.

As a show, it was fresh and delightful.

Garbo Movies Help Starlet

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—New method of grooming starlets: 18-year-old Yvette Mimieux has been ordered to see one Greta Garbo movie a day. And write an essay on those she sees and what she observes. A young girl could learn a lot from watching G. G. oldies.

Tony Curtis is the actor who would be least affected by a Screen Actors Guild strike, now expected to be called March 7. "I have three pictures unreleased, and I'm getting percentages continually from four others," said the boy who started life very barefoot in the Bronx. "But," he added sombrely, "I want us all to keep working."

The only star in Hollywood to have a huge limousine with chauffeur in uniform at her beck and call, day and night, is, you guessed it, Marilyn Monroe. It's in her contract, along with approval of all photographs, in color and black and white. Hard to figure who has done better in the world, the poor little girl who Marilyn was or the poor boy who Tony was.

The Ernie Borgnine marriage is having tough sledding because of living in Mexico where Ernie would rather live in California. And Ernie cannot understand his wife's children. Also, there is a tax situation. Mrs. B. (Kathy Jurado) hopes, things will straighten out when her children, who do not speak English, learn to communicate with their step-father.

The Living Commonwealth

West Indies in Turmoil

By ASTON FRANCIS

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters)—The 10 island territories of the British West Indies enter the '60s with a political question mark hanging over the future of their infant island federation.

A clash between the two largest islands, Jamaica and Trinidad, will come to a head in Trinidad this month at an inter-governmental constitutional conference.

Jamaica, with about half the federation's 3,000,000 people, wants to keep full control over its growing economic affairs. Prime Minister Norman Manley has said Jamaica will leave the federation if she does not get her way. She might even try for full independence.

Trinidad, 1,000 miles away from Jamaica at the other end of the Caribbean, believes the federal government at present a loose structure should be much more closely knit.

Its prime minister, Eric Williams, is demanding an "absolutely and completely independent" government with much more power.

All these points will be thrashed out at the conference.

The federation of 10 island groups was established in January, 1958. It includes Trinidad and Tobago, Jamaica, the Barbados, St. Vincent, St. Lucia, Grenada and Dominica and the Leeward Islands of Antigua, Barbuda, Redonda, Monserrat, St. Kitts, Nevis and Anguilla.

It has a Parliament of two chambers, a 10-member Senate and a 45-member House of Representatives. A council of state, or cabinet, is presided over by Governor-General Lord Hales.

Jamaica has 17 seats in the present 45-seat federal house, Trinidad 10.

In the new house, Jamaica is demanding 49 per cent of the seats in accordance with her greater population—4,600,000 to Trinidad's 1,000,000.

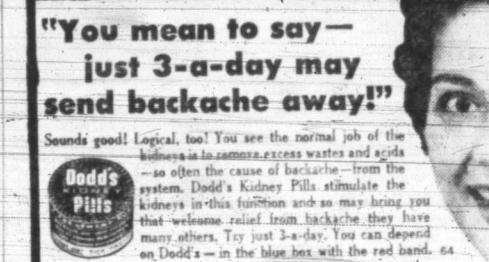

Employment, housing and medical programs are at their peak and emigration to Britain is consequently declining.

Many people are buying their own homes. Cars, refrigerators and other electrical appliances are being regarded as necessities than luxuries. One in 30 Jamaicans owns a motor car. But more one reason Jamaica wants a minimum of interference with her economy is the growing prosperity of her industries.

No longer is she so largely dependent on bananas. The lively less spectacular than in the image word now is bauxite, Jamaica.

Sounds good. Logical, too! You see the normal job of the business is to remove excess wastes and acids

Swan Without a Mate May Face Lonely Year

A lonely year may lie ahead for the Beacon Hill swan that lost its mate last November to someone who killed it and carried away the remains all except a few white feathers. Parks department intended to catch a new mate this winter.

But the weather hasn't been cold enough, parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday.

"They have to be almost starving," he explained, "before we have any hope of catching one."

Vote on Fluoridation Makes No Sense

Nature Group Protests Removal of Underbrush

Victoria Natural History Society objected strongly yesterday to proposed removal of brush around the model yacht pool at Holland Point.

On instructions of city council, parks committee has allowed for removal of the brush in this year's budget estimates.

But the society said in a letter that the brush isolates a natural area from the built-up part, provides a fine nesting place for birds, and prevents erosion of the cliff.

Water Rate Boost

Council May Have Fight on Hands

City council may have a fight on its hands over its attempts to increase water rates 42 to 50 per cent in the city and Esquimalt.

One member of Esquimalt council made it clear last night that he will oppose such a high increase, and other councillors may follow suit.

Coun. G. K. Samson said "I will object most strenuously to the increase in rates proposed by the city water works."

Reeve A. C. Wurtele replied "I have to abide by my council. If they wish to petition to the Public Utilities Commission against this, they have the right to do so."

City council Thursday approved increases of 42 to 50 per cent, over objections from Aldermen Rev. J. L. W. McLean and Elmer McEwen. By:

Identity of Ship Still a Mystery

A search of maritime records so far has disclosed no clues to the identity of a sailing ship wreck located at Sidney Inlet on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Commodore H. W. V. Gross told the annual meeting of the Maritime Museum of B.C. at Esquimalt it is hoped further

Liberal Leader Here Tonight

B.C. Liberal Leader Ray Perrault will speak on "The Real Election Issues" at a meeting to be held at the Victoria Liberal Headquarters at 8 p.m. today.

Cars Must Carry 1960 Plates Today

Yesterday was the last day on which motorists could drive in cars bearing 1959 plates, and purchase their licences for 1960. It was also the issuing office's busiest day of the year.

When the wickets closed about 3 p.m., more than 3,000 sets of car plates had been sold during the day.

As of midnight last night, no cars bearing 1959 plates may appear on city streets. Even parked cars will be ticketed. The ticket, incidentally, will double the cost of the 1960 plate, for the fine for "no current licence" is $25.

Investigation will clear up the mystery.

There is a possibility another diving expedition this year will be able to get inside the hull and bring up relics to identify the ship.

A mahogany mast, capstan, and other gear recovered by naval divers last fall led investigators to guess the sunken vessel dated back to 1830-1840 and probably was built somewhere in the Orient.

Commodore Gross reported greatly increased attendance at the maritime museum last year. Visitors totalled 8,443, a gain of 3,225 over 1958. The RCN sponsors the museum which is located on Esquimalt Road near the gates of HMC Dockyard.

He said the role of dental technicians in dentistry is becoming of increasing importance, but would probably not come to the point where technicians would deal directly with the public in the dispensing of dentures.

I think a good portion of the mechanical aspect of constructing dentures can be delegated . . . but I also believe that in the best interests of the public the training services (of technicians) should be under the control of the profession," he said.

Keen competition in the local "nut drive" business was noted in Esquimalt council last night.

Esquimalt United Church requested permission to hold a nut drive in the municipality.

Dee 1, 1960, and the Y's Men's Club of Victoria requested permission for a similar drive.

B.C. Electric Co. still hopes to obtain a power-line easement in the northeastern part of the city's Thetis Lake property, a spokesman indicated yesterday.

But weeks may go by before the issue is settled.

Recreation Minister Earle C. Westwood said in mid-month that his department was prepared to study a proposal that it take over the property, and its deputy, Dr. D. B. Turner, said a survey of the property could be carried out and a report made in about three weeks.

But before such a study is started, the department indicated yesterday that the property will have to be offered to the government by the city.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: You get many complaints on the mother-in-law but few people complain about father-in-law. How should I handle this?

My wife's father lives with us. He's never been wrong in his life and he's never lost an argument. He keeps telling me how to run my business although he went broke three different times. His favorite subject is the swell guys Marge went with before she married me and how rich they are today.

The old buzzard has money but he refuses to live alone because he says he loves our company. I try to be respectful for Marge's sake but sometimes I think the only way to

She Gives Me Money

Dear Ann: I'm a boy 17 who is in a quandary. I work part-time after school and on Saturday. My mother is a widow who works to support two younger sisters. We aren't destitute, please understand, but there's not a lot of money to throw around.

The trouble is with a certain girl who seems to like me very much. Her dad is a professional man and they live in a beautiful home. She phones me every night and gave me a wrist watch for Christmas which I begged her to take back, but she refused.

Well, this girl asked me to a big social dance. I told her I couldn't go because I didn't have a tux. She said I should pretty.

Daughter Doesn't Know

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter is nine and she doesn't know my present husband is not her real father. I was divorced when she was two and this man is the only father she knows.

Marriage Follows Separation

QUEBEC (CP)—A war, a concentration camp and then the Iron Curtain separated Jan Miszkiel from his childhood sweetheart in Poland.

But he married her Saturday, although he had to return Sunday to his home in London, Ont., while his bride remained in hospital here.

His bride, the former Czeslawa Marinkiewicz, is recovering from tuberculosis. She is expected to be able to join her husband in about three months.

Jan, a Polish soldier in the Second World War, came to Canada after being freed from a German concentration camp. Once established here, he applied to have Czeslawa brought here as his fiance.

Permission was granted last spring and she arrived here Dec. 9, but was immediately sent to hospital for treatment of a mild case of tuberculosis. "Even though I am still sick, I am very happy to be in Canada at last," she said.

Jan, a technician in a London lumber yard, said he had saved for 13 years to bring her to Canada.

please him is to drop dead. Any suggestions?—FED TED.

Dear Ted: Don't drop dead to please your father-in-law. He'd miss you because there wouldn't be anyone around to need.

Does Marge have any brothers or sisters who could relieve you of his company for a few months out of the year? It seems a shame that you alone should be favored with his pearls of wisdom.

Your best protection against a garrulous old man is a tin ear and a sense of humor.

Green Salad, Apples With Brunswick Stew

By LOUISE MOORE

I could—were I so inclined—prepare a Brunswick stew in traditional fashion without moving off my back veranda.

Now this dish is just as suitable for serving at any shindig and its one that can be made even a day ahead and be all the better for it. You may even use canned vegetables such as succotash and the stew will still be a most flavorful brew.

Beef, veal or pork may be used along with chicken or an older bird and rice or noodles make substantial additions. As for subtle flavor add a glass of sherry or Mareipa.

BRUNSWICK STEW

Into a heavy pot or Dutch oven put a good sized piece of shin beef—1½ to 2 pounds will do. Then cover it with water, add an onion sliced, ½ bay leaf and simmer for an hour.

Cut up a 4 or 5 pound fowl or use 2 roasting chickens if you wish. Remove as much of the fat as possible. Add the chicken pieces to the pot and simmer gently until meat and bones are almost tender—about 2½ hours.

THICK SOUP

Add 1 can tomatoes (2½ cups), 1 can corn, 1 cup cooked green limas, 1 cup diced potatoes. Season with salt and pepper and cook until vegetables and meat are tender. Add ¼ cup sherry.

When done it should be of the consistency of a thick rich soup. Serve in deep bowls with

FRESH SOUP

Some like to use frying chickens, first browning the pieces in bacon fat, and omit the beef. Sliced onions, chopped green peppers are simmered along with the chicken until tender. Then add 1 cup solid pack tomatoes, a package quick frozen onions and if you have it, a can of okra.

Simmer until vegetables are tender. Then add a package frozen corn, season to taste, cover and simmer only until vegetables are done.

This may be served in a rice ring and mighty good it is with a green salad for a Saturday supper.

Tips for Parents

Helping Child Read

By EDITH HENRY

So you'd like to help your child with his reading?

You may hesitate because some educators say you do more harm than good. They are the individuals who should know, so it is worth asking why they hold such an opinion.

ADVERSE EFFECT

Their reasons are valid and drawn from experience. They have found that parental help may influence, adversely, a child's attitude towards reading.

Learning to translate a printed page is slow, hard work for a beginner.

You may be overzealous, forcing the child ahead of what his class is covering. This interferes with the school program; may make the child a "showoff," may tend to develop in him a dependency on you.

OVERANXIOUS

You may be overanxious. The child, feeling your dissatisfaction with his progress, comes to associate reading with strain, and dislikes it.

You may show amusement as when Mary, trying to sound out the word "development," says, "Mummy, what's a devil's outfit?" Here the sensitive child's attitude may become one of hesitancy in trying.

IMPATIENCE

You may show impatience, especially if the child is a slow reader. This can make for a feeling of inadequacy, of failure, a giving-up attitude.

Thus the educators speak.

Nevertheless, we should still like to help our children's reading and it is possible to do so—but in indirect ways.

Odd as it may seem, the self-confident children—those who have the "I can do it" attitude—are the ones who are ready to attack the printed page with vigor.

So if, in nonreading situations, we can help our children to experience success in a great share of what they do, if we can help them to attain the Habit of success, we are contributing to their reading progress.

Further articles will deal with other practical points and helpful games which indirectly help to develop reading ability.

Odd as it may seem, the self-confident children—those who have the "I can do it" attitude—are the ones who are ready to attack the printed page with vigor.

So if, in nonreading situations, we can help our children to experience success in a great share of what they do, if we can help them to attain the Habit of success, we are contributing to their reading progress.

Further articles will deal with other practical points and helpful games which indirectly help to develop reading ability.

Thus the educators speak.

Nevertheless, we should still like to help our children's reading and it is possible to do so—but in indirect ways.

Leap Year Mothers Beat Odds

EDMONTON (CP)—Mrs. Ray Makarowski of Edmonton celebrated her leap-year birthday today and gave herself the most pleasant birthday present she could imagine—a six-pound, 13-ounce baby girl, Shelley Ann.

Hospital authorities were unable to say just what the odds are on a mother and daughter both being born on Feb. 29, but they are considered "astronomical."

SEATTLE (AP)—A leap year baby was born here Monday to Mrs. Judy Ingram, 20, herself a leap year child.

Man Fights Off Wolf

SWAN HILLS, Alta. (CP)—A bulldozer operator lost his gloves, coat and shirt over the weekend in a battle with a 120-pound timber wolf near this oilfield community, 200 miles northwest of Edmonton. Alex Mukhinn said he was driving north of Swan Hills when the wolf sprang out of the bush and jumped up on the rear of the machine. Mukhinn swatted the animal with his gloves, then tried to fend it off with his heavy coat. After a struggle the wolf fell to the ground, taking Mukhinn's shirt with it.

Mukhinn said he drove the machine into Swan Hills where two men took rifles and tracked down the wolf and shot it. The carcass will be sent to Edmonton to determine if the animal was rabid.

DALLAS (AP)—A supermarket executive says his company likes to see men do the grocery shopping.

"We do a lot more business that way," says Stephen Douglas, vice-president of the Kroger Co.

"The wife still makes out the list when the husband does the shopping, but he will always pick up a few extra items."

The ideal situation, he said, is the husband and wife shopping team "if they shop together, they buy more."

Graham Crusade

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—African witch doctors are picketing preliminary meetings of Billy Graham's crusade in Kisumu, where the U.S. evangelist appears today.

Rev. Joseph Blinco, in Kisumu, 163 miles northwest of Nairobi, said that for three days native medicine men have been parading outside the meeting place in weird costumes, muttering "hexes" and incantations.

Blinco refused to stop the meetings, addressing 8,000 persons in three days. Graham has gone to Kisumu as scheduled.

The evangelist had a brief discussion Monday with Tom Mboya, Kenya's African nationalist leader.

Graham preached to a convivial group of villagers in Tanganyika Sunday—but they Shelley Berman, the TV, record and nightclub comedian, is the most fanatic funnyman in the business about noises from his audiences.

I once saw him walk offstage and not return at Los Angeles' mammoth 7,500-seat Shrine Auditorium, because some in the audience were growing restless to hear famed jazz soloists booked on the same program.

So extremely touchy is he that on another evening at the Avant Garde in Hollywood, he interrupted his show to puzzle over a noise which he said was interfering with his performance. It turned out to be the motor of the kitchen refrigerator.

A couple of weeks after he had closed at the club, he returned to see Phil Leeds, a fellow performer and friend of his. Shelley found him so funny that he laughed uproariously. The people at the next table glared at him, but Shelley kept on laughing. They started to heckle him and kept it up for several minutes.

Finally Berman withdrew and acidly accosted the manager at the bar...

"I've been heckled during my act," he told him, "but this is the only club where I've been heckled as a customer!"

were too tipsy to get the message.

Seeing 30 men and women lurching through a native dance and passing African beer in gourds, Graham brought his Bible and showed it to a member of the Arusha tribe.

"I'm too drunk. I do not understand," the villager mumbled.

Chessman Willing to Die

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Caryl Chessman, who has staved off death in the gas chamber for almost 12 years, offered his life last night if it would help abolish capital punishment in California. Chessman made his offer in a letter to Gov. Edmund

Brown on the first day of a special session of the California legislature to consider abolition of the death penalty.

UGLY IMAGE

Chessman said he made the offer so that the legislature can consider abolishing capital punishment without the "ugly, emotion-inflaming image of Caryl Chessman" affecting its judgment.

He praised Brown for refusing to "bow down to political expediency" in granting him a 60-day reprieve.

ACTION THROTTLED

But Chessman said, Brown's decision and "my continued existence . . . threaten to throttle" action on the death penalty.

"Over and over I have asked myself what can I do to divorce the ugly, emotion-inflaming image of Caryl Chessman from the grave social issue of capital punishment? I decided I can and I do, without theatrics, offer them my life."

B.C. Drops Arson Offer

Attorney General Bonner said yesterday a $1,000 reward, posted in 1953 by the province for information leading to arson convictions, has been withdrawn.

The government earlier cancelled a similar reward in connection with bombings in the central interior.

Since the reward was cancelled a bomb shattered the RCMP office at Nelson, but no one was injured.

FLORENCE, S.C. (UPI) — She had a date with Dillinger to see a gangster movie.

Purvis later gave this official version:

"When Dillinger left the show, he started south and passed my car without noticing me. As soon as he had gotten a step past the car, I thrust my right arm out and dropped my hand and closed it, the pre-arranged signal for closing in. Instantly my men appeared from all sides."

Dillinger gave one hunted look about him and attempted to run up an alley, where several of my men were waiting. As he ran, he drew an automatic pistol. As his hand came up with the gun, several shots were fired by my men before he could fire. He dropped fatally wounded . . ."

For Germany

Nuclear Loophole?

Legally Free To Produce A-Weapons

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain acknowledged Monday that West Germany is legally free to produce nuclear weapons outside its own territory but Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd expressed the conviction in the House of Commons that West Germany would not do so.

Lloyd met a barrage of questions from Labor members about Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's plans to establish military supply bases in Spain. Similar questions met foreign under-secretary Lord Lansdowne in the House of Lords.

Lansdowne was questioned closely about pledges given by West Germany's Bonn government in 1954 when it joined NATO and was granted sovereignty. He affirmed the London and Paris treaties prohibited West Germany from manufacturing atomic, biological or chemical weapons on its own soil.

Lansdowne admitted that West Germany could produce such weapons in Spain or other foreign countries but this would be "entirely contrary" to the spirit of the 1954 treaties.

In the Commons, Lloyd said the West German government has plainly stated it does not intend to produce nuclear weapons on German soil or anywhere else.

"I believe that statement of their policy," he said.

Labor MP John Edwards, a Spanish civil war veteran who was expelled from Spain last December, said a stockpile of West German guided missiles has been produced at a factory outside Bilbao, Spain.

Do Reds Have A-Subs?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia is believed to have atomic submarines and the Kremlin is withholding news of this success until more of the long-range subs are built.

Reports Monday said the Soviets have cut down production of conventional submarines to concentrate on nuclear-powered, missile-firing subs.

After Disarmament

West to Propose Global Police

LONDON (UPI) — The West plans to propose to Russia the creation of an international police force to replace the world's armies after disarmament, diplomatic sources said Monday.

The proposal was described as part of the Western program to be presented at Geneva March 15, when five Western and five Soviet bloc countries meet for disarmament talks.

Both the West and the Soviet disarmament programs will result in total disarmament in their ultimate stages. But the West wants to set up a force under international control to police the peace in a disarmed world.

There were indications that the Soviets would not like the "Allied" plan. They have shied away from international armies in the past and dislike any proposal that intrudes on Soviet territory.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, when he offered his plan for complete and total disarmament in the next four years, made no mention of such a force.

The Western plan, as sketched by the diplomatic sources, calls for total disarmament under fool-proof controls.

In the absence of national defence organizations, the projected force will be responsible for maintaining peace throughout the face of the present threat to our borders.

Announcement was made they saw a blinding flash after Prime Minister Nehru agreed to meet here in April midday on Feb. 2, at a point

Marathon Power Filibuster Rages Late in Legislature

Wenner-Gren

Steel Starts Soon

Premier W. A. C. Bennett indicated yesterday that a start on the Wenner-Gren railway in the Peace River district will be made within the next 31 days.

Asked by Gordon Dowding (CCF, Burnaby) whether or not the railway will be started in the second quarter of the year, and whether or not it will be a monorail system, Mr. Bennett replied:

"You'll see no word in the letter of intent about a monorail. But there is a definite commitment to build a railroad." He then added that the letter of intent stipulated that a start be made by April 1.

Later Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) asked the same question, and wanted to know if a plan had been filed. Mr. Bennett would only repeat that there was a definite commitment.

Mr. Harding also inquired whether, if the railroad were not started on time, the rest of the agreement with Wenner-Gren interests would be washed out. He received no answer.

The premier did reiterate that the government is prepared to sanction proposals of the Peace River Power Development Company provided the B.C. water controller and the Public Utilities Commission substantiate economic and engineering feasibility.

At one point in the heated debate the premier's estimates which include the power question, Premier Bennett claimed the Social Credit government is "the friend of the power commission and not by intent, but by foolish jud-

ROBERT STRACHAN

Bennett Back In Fighting Form

A marathon debate on government policy which rose from Premier Bennett's salary vote last Friday to approach filibuster proportions under CCF stimulus ground to a halt at 11 p.m. last night—but not without a final spate of name-calling.

And not without a new rehash of the public power policies and ultimate firing in 1958 of H. Lee Briggs, former general manager of the B.C. Power Commission.

Premier Bennett, still recuperating from a kidney operation one month ago, was back in his old fighting form last night for the first time since he resumed part-time duties 10 days ago, and impressed observers with his staying powers through afternoon and evening sessions.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan leapt into the dying hours of the debate yesterday with the charge that the government is "representing" the B.C. Electric Co. on the floor of the House.

But he backed up to the word "protecting" when an angry premier demanded a retraction.

Mr. Strachan made the charge during heated debate on the government's stand on the case of H. Lee Briggs. When Mr. Bennett demanded a retraction, he changed the word "representing" to "protecting," then changed his statement again and referred to the government attitude to the BCE as "most misguided."

Mr. Strachan had questioned the government's stand on the Shrum royal commission report on power, which he said, "justified" Mr. Briggs.

Time After Time

CCF after CCF rose time and time again to try and get the premier pinned down on the plans to develop the Columbia River and the Peace River, but the premier ably parried each demand.

The premier did reiterate that the government is prepared to sanction proposals of the Peace River Power Development Company provided the B.C. water controller and the Public Utilities Commission substantiate economic and engineering feasibility.

At one point in the heated debate the premier's estimates which include the power question, Premier Bennett claimed the Social Credit government is "the friend of the power commission and not by intent, but by foolish judgement, the CCF is the enemy of the B.C. Power Commission."

The premier explained that in 1952 when the Socreds took office, provincial guarantees of B.C. Hydro borrowing totalled $30,000,000, but today it is $200,000,000.

The premier said that if the B.C. Electric were taken over by the power commission, as suggested by the CCF, electricity rates would be higher in Vancouver than they are today.

He said that if millions of dollars were spent to take over the BCE, it wouldn't create one new job, but it would tie up the credit of this province and make development of the Columbia impossible.

Great Defenders

"We are the great defenders of the power commission. We build on a sound basis, not on the shifting sands of socialism," he said.

Premier Bennett was aggressive and took the attitude that he had the CCF on the run. "Today nobody knows where the CCF stands. They just want a few labor bosses to get their money," the premier said.

But the CCFers were just as aggressive and just as confident they had the government on the run.

Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) charged the government had plans for Columbia development which it re-

Into Both Projects

The premier replied that the premier will hear all the facts and energy board will be brought in.

"There will be a very small percentage of the people in my area opposed to what is best for B.C. But we will not accept anything that will be destructive to roads, destructive to industrial sites, destructive to beaches and destructive to agriculture, unless it is best," Mr. Harding said.

At one point in the debate Mr. Harding referred to the Socreds as "Tories with crew on the run."

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black (SC, Nelson-Creston) entered the debate as the member from the "centre of the Columbia system."

"I am for the best for Canada, the best for B.C. and the best for the Kootenays," he said.

"I have word from the minister (Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston) the matter will be discussed with the people of the Kootenays," Mr. Black said.

"When the time comes for the whole thing to be discussed at the community level, it will be discussed. At the moment I do not have an opinion," Mr. Black said.

Donald Brothers (SC, Rossland Trail) said he would like

Britain Before Election

Premier Bennett said last night he will go to Britain before the next provincial election.

Asked by Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) when he was going to Britain, the premier said around April or May.

At a recent press conference the premier said he would be going in May or early June.

Somass Division Employees

600 Years of Service!

PORT ALBERNI—Six hundred years of service is the combined record of 24 original employees who are still at Somass Division sawmill as its 25th anniversary is marked here this week. Many of them have worked throughout the Bloedel, Stewart & Welch Ltd. quarter-century without a lost-time accident.

The first whistle blew at sawmill took care of the mill at 8 a.m. Feb. 25, 1935.

The plant was operated by The Port Alberni mill was named "Somass Division" when B.S. & W. amalgamated with H. R. MacMillan Export Co. Today it is part of the lumber production facilities of the recently created MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. organization.

Since the original construction, new additions have been made to production and finishing facilities so that it can now handle both export and domestic orders. These include over the years a dry lumber storage shed, planers, dry kilns and, to supply raw material for the pulp mill, chippers, storage bins, and a complex conveying system.

DEHYDRATED BARK

The refuse burner, once a significant part of all sawmills, has been dismantled. The entire log is used to produce lumber, chips or hog fuel. Even the bark is partly dehydrated in a bark press and used for fuel to produce steam for power.

Thieves Get Only $30 When Offices Entered

YOUBOU—Thieves ransacked two offices here and got away with a small amount of money after failing to "jimmy" and hack their way into a safe and vault.

About $30 in coins donated to the Red Cross was taken from a tin in the office of an accountant at the B.C. Forest Products Ltd. time office sometime overnight Saturday.

CASH DRAWER

About $2, also in silver, was taken from a cash drawer in the Canadian National Railway office, beside the mill office.

A door was jimmied to gain entry into the CNR's supply room below the office. Nothing was taken. Upstairs the lock on a side window was broken and the window raised.

Police said none of the windows, or doors showed being forced to gain entry to the ECFP office, but it is believed they used special breaking and entering tools on the lock on one of the doors.

The safe in the CNR office showed attempts had been made to open it with a sharp tool, probably a jimmy also called a crowbar.

The large vault in the ECFP office was broken into and the contents of the drawers attempted to force it open. "Spilled all over." Filing cabinets were also smashed and to the offices was "extensive" records disrupted.

Mummy Discovery Relic of Massacre?

CAIRO (Reuters)—Archaeologists excavating in Nubia, upper-Egypt, have found a giant burial ground with more than 1,000 mummies, many of them children, dating back more than 4,000 years.

Announcing the discovery last week, Dr. Anwar Shukry, director-general of the Egyptian antiquities department, said it shed light on ancient Nubian history from the prehistoric era till the end of the Pharaohs' rule.

He added that further important discoveries were expected before the area was submerged by the waters of the Aswan Dam, now under construction.

The condition of the mummies suggested that they had been the victims of a massacre. Some were tied up and some had been strangled.

Yakking About Begonias

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Seems to me that every time I pick up a paper or a magazine these days, somebody has a big advertisement in it offering begonia bulbs. And every time I turn on the radio, the announcer is yakking away about fantastic bargains in the tubers of these exotic plants.

Either some super-salesman from Belgium or Holland has unloaded a whole shipload of bulbs on B.C. dealers, or the tuberous begonia has caught on here and has won the popularity it so richly deserves.

Certainly no other flower can hold a candle to the begonia for planting up that problem bed around the north side of the house, where so little sun penetrates.

Most of our annual bedding plants reach for the light in such a position, growing skinny and lanky in the process, or produce all leaves and no flowers. The begonia, though, settles down comfortably, quite satisfied with the bit of sun it gets in early morning and late afternoon, and proceeds to cover itself with a constant succession of tropical-looking blooms which look as if they should be growing in the rain forests of Brazil.

You'll notice, when you go to buy your bulbs, that several different kinds are offered, and I thought it might serve a useful purpose if I were to explain the characteristics of these different types.

CAMELLIA TYPE—If you have ever seen a camellia or a gardenia flower, you'll have a pretty good idea as to the general shape and appearance of these begonia blooms. The plants are sturdy, standing a little better than a foot tall when fully grown, and producing fully double flowers of great beauty, averaging around four inches across. They come in various shades of scarlet, crimson, yellow, white, orange, salmon, pink and window boxes, arranged so as to trail over the edge and hang down. The Pendula begonia is a "must" for window boxes on the north side of the house where sun-loving annuals trailers seldom thrive.

FIMBRIATA TYPE—This group produces double flowers heavily fringed and ruffled, and for this reason are sometimes called the carnation-flowered begonias. Prices for these frilly beauties usually run quite a bit higher than for the ordinary kinds.

MULTIFLORA TYPE—These bulbs are quite a bit smaller than the run-of-the-mill begonia tubers, yet are just as expensive or even slightly higher priced than the big ones. You may have some doubts as to whether you are getting your money's worth when you buy these little Multiflora bulbs. Set your mind at rest. The Multifloras produce more blooms per bulb than any other kind, and while the plants are dwarf and compact and the individual flowers quite small, they bloom so profusely that you can hardly see the plants for the flowers. Multifloras can take more sun than the larger-flowered types, and are ideal for massing in small or narrow beds, or for window boxes on the south or west side of the house.

CRISTATA TYPE—This word means "crested," and comes from a most attractive tuft or cockscomb on each petal of the bloom. The flowers are single, but about as frilly as grandmother's petticoat, and on some of the names varieties the tuft or crest is a different color to the rest of the flower, creating quite a dramatic effect.

PENDULA TYPE—These plants have a pendulous or trailing habit of growth, rather like that of the old Balcony petunias, so seldom seen nowadays, and are used in much the same way in hanging baskets, urns, etc.

THE VIEWING WORLD

By John Crosby

What's with Sinatra?

What's with Frank Sinatra? Sinatra, the hottest thing in show business, has not made a record since last Aug. 1 when he recorded a single record called "Talk to Me." He has not made an album since July 20 when he recorded "No One Cares"—despite the fact that his albums sell more than those of any other entertainer.

The word from pretty high up in Sinatra's clan is that the singer wants to break his contract with Capitol and concentrate his efforts in his own company, Essex Productions. However, Capitol has Sinatra tied hand and foot for a couple of years, according to David Cavanaugh of Capital.

As the situation stands, Sinatra can't make records for anyone but Capitol and he won't make them for Capitol. This deadlock could go on for years.

"Four for Tonight" on NBC the other night had a bright sparkle to it, the like of which hasn't been seen on television since the old Sid Caesar show. This is the show that brought together Beatrice Lillie, Cyril Ritchard, Tony Randall and Tammy Grimes. Well, brought together is not quite the word since each of the four performed—except for one brief wacky madrigal and a parody on "Moon and Sixpence" as a single.

I especially liked the opening, a "Mad Revue" with Tony Randall. This had some hilarious blackout sketches. The opening of a S. Arthur Rank picture—a guy swinging that big hammer and crashing right through the gong. Gads, when was the last time I saw blackouts? These were explosively funny.

Beatrice Lillie did two of her old standbys. It's been years since I saw her do that bit as a world-weary actress besieged by admirers. "What's the matter?"—"Nothing! Everything!" Cyril Ritchard contributed a parody of "Around the World in 80 Days," that was intermittently very funny—again with that sort of explosive humor that is so rare nowadays.

Tammy Grimes sang a garland of songs intended to show the emergence of the American woman since 1700—everything from "I Don't Want to Play in Your Yard if You Can't be Good to Me" to "I've Never Been in Love Before." It was delicious. As a show, it was fresh and delightful.

Garbo Movies Help Starlet

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—New method of grooming starlets: 18-year-old Yvette Mimieux has been ordered to see one Greta Garbo movie a day. And write an essay on those she sees and what she observes. A young girl could learn a lot from watching G. G. oldies.

Tony Curtis is the actor who would be least affected by a Screen Actors Guild strike, now expected to be called March 7. I have three pictures unreleased, and I'm getting percentages continually from four others," said the boy who started life very barefoot in the Bronx. "But," he added somberly, "I want us all to keep working."

The only star in Hollywood to have a huge limousine with chauffeur in uniform at her beck and call, day and night, is you, guessed it, Marilyn Monroe. It's in her contract, along with approval of all photographs, in color and black and white. Hard to figure who has done better in the world's poor little girl who Marilyn was or the poor boy who Tony was.

The Ernie Borgnine marriage is having tough sledding because of living in Mexico when Ernie would rather live in California. And Ernie cannot understand his wife's children. Also, there is a tax situation. Mrs. B. (Katy Jurado) hopes things will straighten out when her children, who do not speak English, learn to communicate with their step-father.

West Indies in Turmoil

By ASTON FRANCIS

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters)—The 10 island territories of the British West Indies enter the 1960s with a political question mark hanging over the future of their infant island federation.

A clash between the two of the Caribbean, believes the federal government—at present Trinidad will come to an inter-governmental constitutional conference.

Its prime minister, Eric Williams, is demanding an "absolutely and completely independent" government with full power.

Jamaica, with about half the federation's 3,000,000 people, wants to keep full control over its growing economic affairs, thrashed out at the conference.

The federation of 10 island groups was established in January 1958. It includes Trinidad and Tobago, Jamaica, Barbados, St. Vincent, St. Lucia, Grenada and Dominica and the Leeward Islands of Antigua, Barbuda, Redonda, Monserrat, St. Kitts, Nevis and Anguilla.

Foreign capital is vigorously pushing industry which is also encouraged by government incentives.

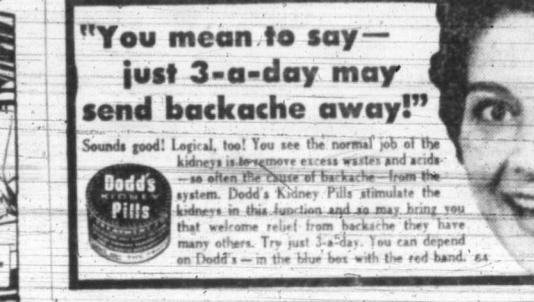

Tourism, steadily growing in importance, is getting a boost from the by-passing of troubled Cuba. Last year 200,000 visitors spent a record $11,500,000.

Employment, housing and medical programs are at their peak and emigration to Britain is consequently declining.

Many people are buying their own homes. Cars, refrigerators and other electrical appliances are being regarded more as necessities than luxuries. One in 50 Jamaicans owns a motor car. But more

One reason Jamaica wants a than 90 per cent of the business minimum of interference with her economy is the growing prosperity of her industries.

No longer is she so largely oil and pitch, progress is, in a magic word now—is bauxite. Jamaica.

Swan Without a Mate May Face Lonely Year

A lonely year may lie ahead for the Beacon Hill swan that lost its mate last November to someone who killed it and carried away the remains all except a few white feathers. Parks department intended to catch a new mate this winter.

But the weather hasn't been cold enough, parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday.

"They have to be almost starving," he explained, "before we have any hope of catching one."

Nature Group Protests Removal of Underbrush

Victoria Natural History Society objected strongly yesterday to proposed removal of brush around the model yacht pool at Holland Point.

On instructions of city council, parks committee has allowed for removal of the brush in this year's budget estimates.

But the society said in a letter that the brush isolates a natural area from the built-up part, provides a fine nesting place for birds, and prevents erosion of the cliff.

Water Rate Boost

Council May Have Fight on Hands

City council may have a fight on its hands over its attempts to increase water rates 42 to 50 per cent in the city and Esquimalt.

One member of Esquimalt council made it clear last night that he will oppose such a high increase, and other councillors may follow suit.

Coun. G. K. Sammon said "I will object most strenuously to the increase in rates proposed by the city water works."

Reeve A. C. Wurtele replied "I have to abide by my council. If they wish to petition to the Public Utilities Commission against this, they have the right to do so."

City council Thursday approved increases of 42 to 50 per cent, over objections from Aldermen Rev. J. L. W. McLean and Elmer McEwen. By:

Cars Must Carry 1960 Plates Today

Yesterday was the last day to the motor vehicle branch in which motorists could drive cars bearing 1959 plates, and purchase their licences for 1960. It was also the issuing office's busiest day of the year.

When the wicket closed about 5 p.m., more than 3,000 sets of car plates had been sold during the day.

As of midnight last night, no cars bearing 1959 plates may appear on city streets. Sidney, was kept in hospital overnight and then released. The ticket, incidentally, will double the cost of 1960 plates. Sidney, was discharged after the fine for "no current licence" is $25.

Asking the public to vote on fluoridation makes about as much sense as holding a plebiscite on new hospital techniques, the president of the Canadian Dental Association said here yesterday.

Dr. W. G. McIntosh arrived here yesterday to address a meeting of the Victoria Dental Society last night.

NO REFERENDUM

He said in an interview that fluoridation "is something which should be dealt with on a scientific level rather than by plebiscite or referendum."

Putting the dental health measure to the electorate is about as justified "as holding a public vote on what anaesthetic procedures should be used in the local general hospital."

MAJOR FACTOR

But he doesn't place all the blame for the overwhelming rejection of fluoridation in North America on the layman.

Asked what, in his opinion, was the major factor in the controversial public health measure it has become, he replied "our research program."

When the dental profession in Canada embarked on the Sarnia-Brantford-Stratford research program it did so on the basis that proving the suspected benefits of artificially-fluoridated water would take 10 years, he explained.

"This led to speculation that dentists were unsure of the effects of the measure."

LONG GONE

He pointed out that the 10 years have long since elapsed and that the program proved beyond doubt that fluoridation is beneficial.

"What is so surprising about fluoridation is that its results have been so universally similar the benefits have been very much the same wherever it has been practised."

39 COMMUNITIES

More than 1,000,000 Canadians in 39 communities are now drinking fluoridated water.

The prominent Canadian dentist, who lives in Toronto, said he favors fluoridation by public health legislation rather than by plebiscite.

BIG PROBLEM

The profession's greatest problem, he said, is the fact that only about one-third of the country's population is receiving adequate dental care due to a shortage of dentists.

Canada has one dentist for every 2,900 people and should have one for each 1,000. To help alleviate this situation the public of B.C. should be loud in its demand for establishment of a faculty of dentistry at UBC, he continued.

NOT TO PUBLIC

He said the role of dental technicians in dentistry is becoming of increasing importance, but would probably not expand to the point where technicians would deal directly with the public in the supply of dentures.

"I think a good portion of the mechanical aspect of constructing dentures can be delegated . . . but I also believe that in the best interests of the public the training services of technicians should be under the control of the profession," he said.

Pensioners Group Has Meeting Today

Victoria Aged Pensioners No. 3 will hold its monthly meeting at 2 p.m. today in Britannia Legion hall. Members Dec. 1, 1960, and the Y.M.C.A. Club of Victoria requested permission for a similar drive.

As of midnight last night, no cars bearing 1959 plates may appear on city streets. Sidney, was kept in hospital overnight and then released. The ticket, incidentally, will double the cost of 1960 plates. Sidney, was discharged after the fine for "no current licence" is $25.

Greater Victoria

Building Picks Up After Slow Start

Construction in Greater Victoria, off to a slower start in January than last year, picked up briskly in February.

Eggs Up Eight Cents

The price of eggs in the Victoria area has risen by eight cents a dozen in the past three weeks, following an influx of prairie eggs that created a price slump in the local market.

This week's increase is of one cent a dozen on large and two cents a dozen on mediums, with small eggs unchanged.

Retail price is expected to be about 48 to 51 cents a dozen.

'Don't Worry'

Gagliardi Comforts Sidney

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said yesterday Sidney will be well taken care of by an access route to the new arterial highway which will serve Swartz Bay ferry terminal.

He said Sidney "has nothing to worry about."

Referring to complaints from Sidney that the future of the village depends on where the highway is located, Mr. Gagliardi said "you can't build a highway that gets traffic to and from any given area by routing it through every place."

The new arterial highway is to serve the new ferry terminal being built to connect with the existing Patricia Bay Highway at the top end of Beacon Avenue, which leads into Sidney.

But weeks may go by before the issue is settled.

Recreation Minister Earle C. Westwood said in mid-month that his department was prepared to study a proposal that it take over the property and his deputy, Dr. D. B. Turner, said a survey of the property could be carried out and a report made in about three weeks.

But before such a study is started, the department indicated yesterday the property will have to be offered to the government by the city.

And the city, before deciding whether or not to make such a request, will wait for a report from a special committee to notify the Y.M.C.A. of the best future uses of the property.

Building Off In Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Lack of NHA loans for house building is blamed by city building inspector Ben Boers for the sharp decrease in construction this year.

Until yesterday, only three houses had been started in Nanaimo against 23 during the first two months of 1959.

Total value of permits was also well below last year. This stood at $66,000 in 1959 against $346,000 in 1958.

The improvement district was also showing signs of a building slump.

Robert Miller reported that permits to date total only $98,000 against $336,000 in January and February of 1959.

NANAIMO — City council's labour relations committee refused to compensate civic employees who complete periods of jury duty, but were sympathetic with the union's request.

The committee has recommended that the union of B.C. municipalities petition the B.C. government to revise jury men's rate "to be realistic amount."

The recommendation came over the bargaining table when a 1959 agreement for civic employees was being worked out.

Employees will receive eight cents across the board on the wage schedule and $14 per month across the board in the salary scale.

City firemen, represented by Nanaimo Firefighters' Association, won a $21 a month across the board boost.

The committee refused the jury compensation request because, it said, this would take the responsibility out of the hands of the provincial government.

DUNCAN — Leslie Ruttan of Shawnigan Lake is in good condition in hospital with facial injuries he received when the car he was riding in was wrecked Sunday.

Driver Richard Wackholtz of Cowichan Station and another passenger, Graham Hooper of Duncan, also received cuts to their heads and faces.

They were treated at King's Daughters' Hospital after Wackholtz' car ran off the road into a ditch.

The accident occurred about 6:30 p.m. on Cowichan Lake Road four miles west of here, near Paldi, while the car was proceeding east. Damage to the car was $800.

PORT ALBERNI — B.C.H.I.S. was more realistic in establishing the daily rate in West Coast General Hospital for 1959. E. F. Duncan, chairman of the hospital board's finance committee, said at the annual hospital meeting Thursday night.

"Our rate was increased from $14.95 to $16 which was a factor in permitting us to operate with a much lower deficit," he said.

A year ago a deficit of $30,029 was reported for 1958.

Several adjustments made subsequent to the annual meeting had brought the figure down to $13,802, while final figures on the 1959 stand at $5,919 he said.

FULFORD — Miss M. Anderson of Beaver Point, showed an interesting variety of pictures taken throughout British Columbia at the Beaver Point Community Hall recently.

Douglas Rivette says he is planning another in his series of attempts to swim Juan de Fuca Strait from Victoria to Port Angeles.

The Victoria lifeguard operator reported that he has been training since Jan. 18 and will step up his training program with a view at making an attempt some time in April.

NANAIMO (CP) — Education Minister Peterson said in a letter read to Nanaimo against 23 during the first two months of 1959.

Total value of permits was also well below last year. This stood at $66,000 in 1959 against $346,000 in 1958.

Mr. Peterson said the government admitted it had not found all answers to the problems involved, but in four years has gone farther in attempting solutions than any other province.

There are practical limits to both the rate which an advance can be accelerated, and to the funds that can be spent on any particular problem," said the minister.

The letter replied to a labor council memorandum on the subject submitted to the government.

Miss Anderson, who is a Beach Is campaign chairman for Mt. Arrowsmith Branch of the Alpine Club, has travelled extensively and the society and the quota for one of her interests are the Qualicum school district 69 is $1,900. This is $100 lower than last year's quota.

BENNETT IN FIGHTING FORM IN FILIBUSTER OVER POWER

Outside Germans Free To Arm

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain acknowledged Monday that West Germany is legally free to produce nuclear weapons outside its own territory but Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd expressed the conviction in the House of Commons that West Germany would not do so.

Lloyd met a barrage of questions from Labor members about Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's plans to establish military supply bases in Spain. Similar questions met foreign under-secretary Lord Lansdowne in the House of Lords.

Lansdowne was questioned closely about pledges given by West Germany's Bonn government in 1954 when it joined NATO and was granted sovereignty. He affirmed the London and Paris treaties prohibited West Germany from manufacturing atomic, biological or chemical weapons on its own soil.

Lansdowne admitted that West Germany could produce such weapons in Spain or other foreign countries but this would be "entirely contrary" to the spirit of the 1954 treaties.

In the Commons, Lloyd said the West German government has plainly stated it does not intend to produce nuclear weapons on German soil or anywhere else.

"I believe that statement of their policy," he said.

Wenner-Gren

Steel Starts Soon

Premier W. A. C. Bennett indicated yesterday that a start on the Wenner-Gren railway in the Peace River district will be made within the next 31 days.

Asked by Gordon Dowding (CCF, Burnaby) whether or not the railway will be started in the second quarter of the year, and whether or not it will be a monorail system, Mr. Bennett replied:

"You'll see no word in the letter of intent about a monorail. But there is a definite commitment to build a railroad." He then added that the letter of intent stipulated that a start be made by April 1.

Later Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) asked the same question, and wanted to know if a plan had been filed. Mr. Bennett would only repeat that there was a definite commitment.

Mr. Harding also inquired whether, if the railroad were not started on time, the rest of the agreement with Wenner-Gren interests would be washed out. He received no answer.

PREMIER BENNETT

ROBERT STRACHAN

Debate Rages In Legislature

A marathon debate on government policy which rose from Premier Bennett's salary vote last Friday to approach filibuster proportions under CCF stimulus ground to a halt at 11 p.m. last night—but not without a final spate of name-calling.

And not without a new rehash of the public power policies and ultimate firing in 1958 of H. Lee Briggs, former general manager of the B.C. Power Commission.

Premier Bennett, still recuperating from a kidney operation one month ago, was back in his old fighting form last night for the first time since he resumed part-time duties 10 days ago, and impressed observers with his staying powers through afternoon and evening sessions.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan leapt into the dying hours of the debate yesterday with the charge that the government is "representing" the B.C. Electric Co. on the floor of the House. But he backtracked on the word "protecting" when an angry premier demanded a retraction.

Mr. Strachan made the charge during heated debate on the government's stand on the case of H. Lee Briggs. When Mr. Bennett demanded a retraction, he changed the word "representing" to "protecting," then changed his statement again and referred to the government attitude to the BCE as "most misguided."

Mr. Strachan had questioned the government's stand on the Shrum royal commission report on power, which he said, "justified" Mr. Briggs."

Time After Time

CCF after CCF after time and time again to try to get the premier pinned down on the plans to develop the Columbia River and the Peace River, but the premier always parried each demand.

The premier did reiterate that the government is prepared to sanction proposals of the Peace River Power Development Company provided the B.C. water controller and the Public Utilities Commission substantiate economic and engineering feasibility.

At one point in the heated debate on the premier's estimates which include the power question, Premier Bennett claimed the Social Credit government is "the friend of the province and make development of the Columbia impossible."

He said that if millions of dollars were spent to take over the BCE, it wouldn't create one new job, but it would tie up the credit of this province and make development of the Columbia impossible.

Great Defenders

"We are the great defenders of the power commission, particularly to himself as representative in the Kootenay area which will be most affected by the flooding which would come with Columbia development."

Mr. Harding said some 40,000 acres of good agricultural land would be flooded if a High Arrow dam is built. "A lot of first-rate agriculture land will be lost forever to British Columbia," he said.

Mr. Harding was unable to get a definite answer from the premier as to why the government had not included the Peace River project as one of the projects to be dealt with by the newly-formed B.C. Energy Board.

Into Both Projects

The premier replied that the energy board will be brought into both the Columbia and Peace projects when it comes to recommending an integration of power developed by both projects.

Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) charged the government had plans for Columbia development which it re-energized.

Mr. Harding referred to the Socreds as "Tories with crew cuts."

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black (SC, Nelson-Creston) entered the debate as the member from the centre of the Columbia system.

"I am for the best for Canada, the best for B.C. and the best for the Kootenays," he said.

I have word from the minister (Land and Forests Minister Ray Williston) that the matter will be discussed with the people of the Kootenays," Mr. Black said.

"When the time comes for the whole thing to be discussed at the community level, it will be discussed. At the moment I do not have an opinion," Mr. Black said.
